WASHFIELD KEEPS HELETICS AND CLEVELAND IDLE Mack and Fohl Inspect Grounds and Then Decide to Call Off Contest

The heavy rain of last night and early today caused Managers Mack and Fohl, of the Athletics and Cleveland, to postpone the pitching duel between Joe Bush and Guy Morton. There will be no game this afternoon, but Mack and Fohl announced today that the contest will be staged their duel tomorrow.

Unless one or both of these young stars is badly off from the fans should be treated to another great pitching duel, such as the Bush and Cicotte drama provided last Friday. Bush was never in such good condition as at the present time, and his team-mates believe that he is going to hang up a long string of victories before being beaten, while the Indians are just as confident that Morton is unbeatable.

No doubt a large crowd will be on hand, as the sensational finish by the Mackmen yesterday caused the fans to forget the result of the final game against the White Sox on Saturday. The Mackmen are now at the head of the second division and are gradually overhauling the Red Sox and Yankees.

When the Indians came here they expected four straight victories, but lost three out of four, but judging by expressions of members of Fohl's team this morning they will be well satisfied with two out of three. The homer scoring in the game was greatly surprised at the vicious attack and fighting spirit of the Mackmen, and believe that Connie's band is going to be dangerous before the season is over.

Sunday afternoon Manager Mack remarked that Jimmy Walsh would not be taken from the game when Rube Oldring returned to left station, that Walsh was the most underrated player in the major leagues. Connie insists that Walsh will star if he gets a good start yesterday Walsh looked better than at any time in his career and the fans are reconciled to the benching of Stelbauer. Jimmy had a home run and two singles, the homer scoring in the game while his second single really started the Mackmen on their way to victory.

Weldon Wyckoff looks better every day and he will be sent against the Indians tomorrow. The sudden improvement in Wyckoff's condition may mean that Mack will have three star hurlers for the long Western trip. When right there are few better pitchers than Wyckoff and two or three victories from him at this time, should enable the Mackmen to climb into the first division before the Western trip starts.

The fans are inclined to criticize Witt for trying to score on Smith's careless return after fielding Strunk's long single, but Mack says the youngster was correct. Harry Witt sent Witt home and it took a perfect fly to catch him. Perfect fly balls are not often made when the opposing team is taken by surprise, and the Indians surely were amazed when Witt's perfect fly was not taken by surprise, and the Indians surely were amazed when Witt's perfect fly was not taken by surprise.

Albert Badou Gets Fight NEW YORK, May 23.—Albert Badou, claimant of the European welterweight championship and last year's champion, is scheduled to meet Ed (Kid) Lewis, who was matched to meet Dallas Joe Grogan in the same division on Tuesday night. A decisive win for Badou will place him in a position to demand a match with the top-notchers.

Eddie Collins Leader of White Sox? Possibly CHICAGO, May 23.—Bumors were afloat in Chicago today that Eddie Collins, president of the White Sox, is contemplating a change of manager. The old Roman, it is said, is discouraged at the miserable showing of the White Sox, who on paper stack up as probably the best team in the American League. If a change in managers is made, it is expected that Collins will be named as the new manager, and it is rumored that Eddie Collins is being looked on with favor by the fans.

TWO PHILA. GOLFERS MAY SPRING BIG SURPRISE IN TITLE TOURNEY THIS YEAR

Reynolds and Buxton Look Best of Locals Picked by U. S. G. A. Mrs. Barlow Consistent

LOCAL fans are having a fine time since the publication of the list of eligible golfers for the national championships to be held at Merion in September. In trying to dope out the chances of any of the two-score Philadelphia golfers included to come down anywhere near the finals.

Of the simon-pure Philadelphians named on the eligible list, the only two who look to have a real chance of surviving some of the match play are Walter Reynolds and Cameron B. Buxton. Sidney Shawwood, George Crump, Howard Perrin, Hugh W. Loughy and others may worry along, but the first mentioned two look to have the best chance. Buxton has shown a steady, fast brand of golf so far this season, and his friends think he is liable to cause a few upsets on the Merion course, which he knows almost as well as Huntingdon Valley.

As for Reynolds, he is pretty sure of making things hum. He is about the only local who might be called a real star. He did not find much time for golf last year except in the early part of the season.

Walter Reynolds Looks Good When he wound up last year in the medal round of the Philadelphia championships with a 71 at Whitmarsh, he opened the eyes of golfers who had never heard his name. He won the Silver Cross, and after that dropped out of tournament play. The fact before he was beaten by Jerry Travers, open champion, on the 33d hole, after he had shown some really startling shots. The most notable one was that on the 10th, when he holed out a ball from the rough high up on the mound in back of the hole. The large gallery burst into frantic cheers, so tickled was it at the beginning of its realization that here was a real star in Philadelphia. Reynolds is a steady, cool expert, who knows all the shots in the bag and is not erratic. His admirers are whispering already that he will be found in the latter part of the big week unopposed.

Mrs. Barlow and No. 9 Why all these other entries for the women's golf championship of Philadelphia? asked a strictly neutral today at Whitmarsh, where the first round of match play was fought out. "Why not have Mrs. Barlow sign the certificate each year and let it go at that?" The query was not without merit. Mrs. Barlow has won the title eight out of nine times, and practically has adopted it as part of her regular name. Of course, she has a severe task in front of her in wading through the matches, but none, not even the opponents themselves, feel that she will be beaten.

The gallery rather hesitated about taking up the trail of Mrs. Barlow at the turn yesterday, fearing to upset her game. She was one stroke above the pace of Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, who went out in 47. But Mrs. Barlow seemed to thrive on spectators. She had three shortly after and wound up in the fine figures of 4-5-4.

Police Court Chronicles

Disappointed, dromedary, determined and defiant. Emergent, Ethiopian, erratic and effervescent. The camel looked worn and worried and his humps indicated hard contact with the cruel world. Bald spots were numerous and patches of court plaster here and there added to the general gloom which surrounded him. His negro guide looked a little more spry.

Police Court Chronicles continued. The bluecoat reminded Sebastian that wasn't just the just way of setting business affairs, and casually led him to the only street and Lancaster avenue police station. He noticed incidentally that the negro was unsteady in the feet.

Sebastian became indignant when he realized that he was under arrest and demanded to know the official charge. But when he realized that he could be held until the arrival of Signor Rossner he became very tame.

Magistrate Stevenson was convinced that Sebastian was actuated by pure business principles and let him go. The camel, which remained outside during the proceedings, was fed and bathed. He rubbed his nose against the cop who fed him to show his gratitude and trudged off leisurely with his energetic guide.
